Irrigated Farms in the Sacramento Valley

Sold on the Half Crop Payment Plan— No Crop, No Pay

We have 150,000 acres of the finest silt soil land in California, lying from thirty to sixty miles north of the city of Sacramento. This land is now being divided into farms of 40 and 80 acres each, and sold on the one-half crop payment plan.

Possession at Once

Many of the 80 acre farms, segregated from the large ranches of which they have heretofore been a part, have complete farm homes,—houses, barns, outhouses, etc., and first choice gets these. The other farms have no buildings on them, but temporary buildings can be quickly and economically built. As the season is summer like the year round, only a small outlay for buildings is required. Living conditions are ideal and the country for miles around is like a beautiful park, dotted here and there with old live oak, black and English Walnut trees.

The Butte County* Canal System

All of our lands are irrigated by The Butte County Canal System, which is located on the west bank of the Feather River in the eastern portion of the Sacramento Valley, about fifty miles north of Sacramento. It is located within the boundaries of Butte and Sutter Counties, and the lower extremity extends within ten miles of the city of Marysville. The great Sacramento Valley contains about 3,000,000 acres of comparatively level land. Some of it is subject to overflow in high water. A small portion of it can be irrigated by gravity, but, like most other valleys, particularly in California, it is far from uniform in quality of soil. Some portions are covered by hard-pan; some of it is badly alkali-ed; but, all things considered, the soil is more uniform than it is in the greater part of the San Joaquin Valley to the south. Professor Mead of the United States Department of Agriculture, and an authority on irrigation matters has said:

“When one considers the vast area of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys, with a surface shaped by nature for the easy spreading of water, with a soil of great fertility, and a marvelous climate, there is no doubt but it is to be, during the twentieth century, a great field of activity. The available water supply of the Sacramento Valley ought to make it the Egypt of the Western Hemisphere.”

*Butte County Canal System has no connection whatever with the Butte Valley project in Siskiyou County, which lies about 150 miles north of Butte County. See any map of California, showing counties.

Water Supply

The Butte County Canal takes its water from the Feather River, which is the chief tributary of the Sacramento River. The watershed of the Feather River lies in the snow-capped Sierra Nevada range, and covers an area of 3,350 square miles. The stream is notable for its great volume and regularity of flow, the minimum being 1,300 cubic feet per second, or 65,000 miners' inches. The Butte County Canal has appropriated and is prepared to handle 1,000 cubic feet per second, which will effectively irrigate 160,000 acres of land.

The Volume of Water Appropriated by the Butte County System is Greater than all the Combined Water Supply Available for Irrigation in "Southern California."

Canal System

The structural work of the Canal consists of a diversion dam and a massive concrete headgate sufficiently strong to resist the highest pressure in flood season, with auxiliary headgates of timber and concrete and many weirs, gates and turnouts. The main canal is sixty feet in width and about thirty miles in length, with a capacity of 1,000 second feet of water, as stated, while the lateral ditch system, which is being rapidly extended, aggregates at the present time about sixty miles in addition.

Soil and Character of Lands

The soil under the Butte County Canal System is an alluvial loam, of uniform character, remarkably fertile, and varying in width from three to five miles and about fifty miles in length—approximately 250,000 acres. It contains absolutely no hard-pan and no alkali. It is the largest uniformly fertile body of irrigable land in the State of California, and possibly in the United States.

In total area it closely approximates the aggregate of all the irrigable lands in Southern California.

Climate and Rainfall

The mean temperatures, as shown by government records during the year, range from 60 to 68 degrees. The summers are long and warm, but not excessively hot. The climate is dry and the nights are comfortably cool. The long warm summers of the Sacramento Valley are its chief assets. This section is free from winter frosts, and the growing season extends through twelve months of the year. The government records for twenty-four years show an average annual rainfall of 26.67 inches, all of which falls between the months of October and April, and from May to September rain is practically unknown. The dry summers and constant sunshine, supplemented by irrigation, insure the largest yield and the best quality of almost every conceivable product of the soil.

300 Tons Alfalfa from Forty Acres.

Products

Alfalfa—There is no section in California, nor in any other State, that will produce more abundant crops of alfalfa. Here the farmer cuts from five to seven crops annually, each cutting averaging about one and one-half tons per acre, and sells readily for $6 to $8 per ton in the stack. By baling the hay and holding until the winter and spring seasons a much larger price is obtained, while intelligent feeding for dairying and stock-fattening purposes will make alfalfa worth from $12 to $15 per ton.

Peaches—Many orchards have been planted in the valley, and are regarded with great favor, both by the canner and the grower, the former paying as high as $60 per ton. A peach orchard in full bearing will net the grower $150 to $200 annually per acre, although growers have received as high as $900 per acre.

SACRAMENTO VALLEY.

Figs—The Smyrna fig grows here to perfection. The tree is long lived, and will net from $250 to $350 per acre annually in full bearing.

Grapes—For wine and raisins; yield from six to ten tons per acre; worth from $12.50 to $18 per ton.

Prunes—The finest and choicest prunes in California are produced in this section. They are profitable, and are growing in favor and importance.

Apricots, Pears, Plums, Olives, etc.—In fact, all deciduous fruits—grow here to great perfection. Of the nuts, the English walnut is most favored. The almond is too irregular in bearing to be grown without irrigation, but as water increases both the yield and the quality of the fruit, and is an element in securing regularity of bearing and setting of fruit buds, it is essential for commercial success.

Citrus Fruits—Oranges and lemons are a proven success in this locality, and the industry, with the advent of irrigation, promises a rapid growth. Oranges can be marketed about four weeks earlier than the Southern California product, and are worth from $1 to $1.50 more per box, as they are ready for the Thanksgiving markets.

Dairying—To the farmer of limited means this affords a sure and quick return, particularly when combined with hog and poultry raising. Alfalfa can be cut six times a season, and averages, at a conservative estimate, one and one-half tons per acre per cutting. A good dairy cow will pay a net profit of $60 to $80 per annum, and can be supported on three-fourths of an acre of alfalfa.

Sugar Beets—In the deep alluvial soil adjacent to Feather River are found favorable conditions, under irrigation, for growing sugar beets. Abundant sunshine gives a high percentage of sugar, and the industry is developing rapidly and satisfactorily. A large beet sugar factory at Hamilton contracts for the product at a uniform price per ton. The returns per acre for sugar beets will range from $60 to $90.

Poultry—Poultry-raising pays well in this section of California. There is no section of the United States where a higher average in price for all classes of poultry is maintained. The minimum price for eggs is 21 cents, and ranges from that to 60 cents per dozen. From the first of August to the last of February a large proportion of poultry products is imported from states east of California, and there is a large outlet for any surplus along the coast of Washington, Oregon, Canada and Alaska.

Intensively Farmed Diversified Crops Produce a Net Yield of 10% on a Valuation of $500 per Acre

There is practically nothing produced in Southern California that can not be as well, or better, produced in the tract of land appurtenant to the Butte County Canal System, while a lower price per acre makes it possible to add to Southern California products the more diversified products familiar to the general farmer.

Transportation

The entire tract from north to south is traversed by the main Shasta Route line of the Southern Pacific Railway, which is paralleled by the Northern Electric Railway, the southern terminus of which is the city of Sacramento. The Northern Electric furnishes abundant freight facilities, and is an important factor in controlling freight rates to Sacramento. At Marysville another factor of control is found in the new Transcontinental Western Pacific Railway, with a direct line to San Francisco. Another factor, and perhaps the most important of all, is found in cheap water transportation by the Sacramento River and San Francisco Bay, from the city of Sacramento to San Francisco. No other irrigated section in the entire West is more favorably located for cheap transportation and prompt service. A large percentage of the ranches in this tract would be crossed, or lie immediately adjacent to, one of these lines of transportation, and none of them will be more than three miles distant therefrom.

THE PAPER—a sixteen-page religious weekly, the official organ of the Church of the Brethren, instructive, beneficial and uplifting. The paper stands in defense of the whole Gospel, including all the ordinances set forth in the New Testament. Many of its subscribers say they would rather pay three or four times the regular price than do without it.

THE BOOK—

INTENSELY INTERESTING.

“I picked up the book, ‘Our Saturday Night’ this morning and could scarcely lay it aside for dinner. What a collection of good things! How the noblest impulses of the soul will be thrilled and warmed by these simple stories, and the great truths taught. A splendid book for one of the children to read aloud around the family fire-side—an art too much neglected. May it bring the Messenger to every home in the Church, and others, as it deserves.”—Chas. D. Bonsack, Union Bridge, Md.

We hear from others, who say that after receiving the book they just had to stick to it until they got to the end. One sister tells us not to send another book just like it or she will not get anything done on account of reading.

You will make no mistake by taking advantage of this offer. Send us $1.85 at once and you will never regret it.

A Biographical Sketch of Elder Enoch Eby

By D. L. Miller.

A complete biography can not be written by man. God alone is the Great Biographer. He sees and knows all; we see little and know less. We say of a man he was born and he died. Dates of these two important events are given, and between them we fill in happenings of less import, more or less correctly and impartially given, and this is biography little we really know of the struggles and battles of others who win and overcome the besetting sins of life! Each has his own problems to solve and his own trials to meet. Easy problems are scarcely worth the solution. Earth's richest treasures are rock-hidden. Mountain peaks are only won by hard, painful climbing, and spiritual depths and heights are only obtained by self-abnegation and a fierce struggle with the world, the flesh and the devil.

Measured by limited human judgment the life of Eld. Enoch Eby was a most successful one. In natural and acquired ability, in faithfulness to the cause he espoused, and in the good accomplished, he measured up to the highest standard of success. Born in Juniata County, Pennsylvania, Nov. 15, 1828, he lived through, and took an active and, much of the time, a leading part in all the movements and activities of the Church of the Brethren during the last half of the nineteenth century. For a quarter of a century, or more, he easily held the first rank among the ministers of the church west of the Ohio River.

His early life shows what may be wrought out of unfavorable environments. His boyhood surroundings were not of a character to foster either religious or educational aspirations, and the neighborhood morals were not of a high type. The common schools offered but three or four months of only very limited educational advantages, and to young Enoch these months were often halved by the strenuous and pressing duties of an active farm-life, and yet the young man, with a determination to be admired by all, qualified himself to teach in the public schools of Pennsylvania. He once wrote of the moral condition of the community in which his young life was cast in the following words: "No from the human standpoint. But what of the inner, unseen and unknown life,—the desires, the ambitions, the aspirations, the temptations that assail the soul, the fiery trials that come into every life and the sighs and groans that can not be uttered? As a rule, these are unknown to men and they are the strongest forces in character building. Life's greatest victories are only by absolute self-surrender and by terrific effort. How Sunday-schools, but plenty of distilleries, with much drinking, dancing, swearing, and frolicking. I thank God for strict parental government which alone, with God's help, kept me from moral destruction." For a time there was preaching in his neighborhood every eight weeks, and later the privilege was had every four weeks. Two members of the Church of the Brethren lived within ten miles of the Eby home, so that opportunity of associating with members of the church, and for religious instruction outside the home, were not such as are enjoyed in these days.

Bro. Eby's father and mother were faithful members of the church and that they gave their children careful, religious training is evidenced by the fact that all of them, nine in number, united with the church at an early age. The subject of this sketch was baptized when he was seventeen years old and so spent sixty-four years in the service of the Master. In 1847 he was married to Sister Hettie Howe, sister of Eld. William Howe, of Pennsylvania, and in 1851 was called to the ministry in the Aughwick congregation, in his native State. He often related to the writer how he had felt for years that the call to preach the Word would come to him, but when it came, such was his sense of unworthiness that he said: "I spent the first night in sleepless tossing on the floor, weeping bitterly, with the prayer of Jesus on my lips, 'Father, if it be possible let this cup pass from me.' My unholiness, my poor qualifications in every way, the care of my family, with but little education, no experience in public speaking, all stared me in the face. On the other hand was the high calling to stand between God and man to warn sinners. All pressed me sore. Finally the thought came, 'The Lord will not require more than he gives ability to do,' and I surrendered at once and have labored in the ministry with comfort for many years." He served in that high calling nearly sixty years.

In March, 1855, the entire Eby family moved to Stephenson County, Illinois, settling near the town of Lena, where afterwards the Waddams Grove church was organized. Here he was advanced to the second degree of the ministry and later to the bishopric, and in 1864 was placed in charge of the Waddams Grove congregation, and under his wise administration and powerful preaching the church grew and prospered. Here he spent many of the most active years of his life.

In 1877, in company with Eld. Daniel Fry, he was sent to Europe, to assist in organizing the church in Denmark. He always took an abiding interest in the work in Europe. He was later appointed to visit the churches there, but, owing to the illness of Sister Eby, was unable to go. In 1884 he was appointed Chairman of the General Mission Board, in which capacity he served faithfully and well for a number of years. To the writer's knowledge he never missed a meeting of the Board during the years of the service. He spent some years in Kansas, where he did active church work and then returned to the old home at Lena, Illinois, where he spent his few declining years. He was active in the ministry until a short time before his death. He passed to his reward April 26, 1910, at the ripe old age of eighty-one years, five months and eleven days, and was buried in the Waddams Grove cemetery. The funeral sermon was preached by Eld. Galen B. Royer to a large concourse of people.

Bro. Eby was the father of nine children, of whom the following are still living and serving the church: John G. Eby of Summerfield, Kansas, whose son, Enoch, is a missionary in India; Annetta Yarger, of Lena, Ill., who faithfully ministered to her father in his last days; David B. Eby, of Sunnyside, Wash., bishop of the church at that place, who has served a number of times on Standing Committee, and Levi H. Eby, bishop of the church at Payette, Idaho. He also served on Standing Committee and was Writing Clerk of the Conference at Harrisburg, Pa., in 1902.

It was my privilege to know Bishop

Eby intimately for a half century. Part of that time we held the closest possible relationship as coworkers in the church. He was a faithful man. He held tenaciously to the principles for which the church stood. He never wavered for a moment in his faith in those principles. Human he was, with human weaknesses such as all men have to contend with, but he was an humble man at heart as well as in appearance and hesitated not to confess his faults and strive for the higher life. In the days of his activity he was a leader among leaders, and one of the strongest men in the church. His influence and his strength is evidenced by the fact that he served on the Standing Committee eighteen years and for fifteen years he was chosen either Reading Clerk or Moderator of our Annual Conferences. He was peculiarly fitted for the duty of Moderator. He had a splendid, well-modulated voice, which never broke even at its highest pitch, and could be heard in the largest tabernacle to the limit of the largest crowd. He was eminently fair in his rulings and his pleasant manner endeared him to all. It was often said he was the best Moderator we had.

As a minister he ranked, in his prime, among the very best pulpit orators in the church. How well I remember how his eloquence thrilled me when I first heard him preach, fifty years ago, at a love feast held in a barn in Northern Illinois. He had none of the artificial niceties of the elocutionary art. His speech was natural and unstudied and came warm from the heart. He was able to move audiences as few men could in his time. He was not a debater, as was his ablest contemporary, Brother R. H. Miller. His power lay in exhortation and appeals to the heart and emotions, rather than to the reason, and he never failed to carry his audience with him. He was emotional, kind-hearted, courteous, genial, and put his soul into his work. Few who knew him well will ever forget his hearty handshake and his warm greetings.

He had the advantage of living his life fully out. As years count between two eternities he was an old man when the Lord called him hence. His energies were prolonged, and only a year ago one of our leading men said that Brother Enoch made the best talk given at our Ministerial Meeting. May his soul rest in peace!

The Minister's Little Wife.

By J. E. Miller.

'Twas eight o'clock in the evening. A howling storm drove the snow outside, while the frozen panes told all too well whither mercury was tending. Charley and Mary were in bed. The little babe of four months was sleeping sweetly in the cradle by the stove. The hired man had gone to town for the mail,—there were no rural routes then. The little wife sat thinking. Suddenly she started as the door opened and the hired man entered. He was back from town, frosty and covered with snow. There was a bunch of mail,—more than usual. The railroad had been blockaded, but today it was opened and the delayed mail came to town.

Eagerly she sorted the mail. There were two letters from her absent husband. He was a minister, out in the field, doing his Master's work. She was the minister's little wife. Only the minister's little wife as it often seemed to her when the eager throngs crowded around her husband with questions, or anxious to greet him for his excellent sermon or helpful words. Not that her husband had ever, in the least, slighted her or failed to provide as best he could for her every want. But the people, the people, it seemed did not know, did not understand what a help she was to him nor what burdens she sometimes, yes, often, bore for him and them. How few of us really do know the inner, the real life of the minister's wife! Always keeping herself in the background, always working and praying for his success, always denying herself that he may the better carry on his work, always staying at home "by the stuff," managing the farm, training the children, doing the work of both a man and a woman, doing it all with no recognition nor encouragement from those outside her own little home. Who would not doff his hat to her if only he knew that she needed a kind look, a cheering word, or a helping hand? Yes, we would all do this if we only thought? Strange we so seldom think.

Two letters this time. Yes, that was due to the delay caused by the storm. Her husband always wrote every day while he was away. Somehow he couldn't help it. He just had to write her. She had done so much for him. She helped him prepare his sermons. She aided in the selection of texts, choosing subjects, gathering material, finding related texts, fixing on suitable illustrations. She had suggested the omission of this weak point and the insertion of that stronger argument. In fact, she was so manifestly present in all his work that he really felt his sermons belonged to his wife as much as to himself. His little wife had been his best helper in his sermon preparation. And did he not know that at the very hour he was in the pulpit, pleading with all his power, his little wife was thinking of him, praying for him and in spirit was with him? And so it was that he wrote to her daily. His letters were so thoughtful. They were her only stay while he was away.

She read. He had just closed a very successful meeting. He was always having good meetings but this time the ingathering was greater than ever. Not only were sinners outside of the church moved but even the sinners inside the church were converted. Two brethren, whose families had been on the outs for several years had become reconciled. One brother, who had a difference with an outsider, had gone voluntarily and made matters right. That outsider became a brother the very next day. There had been such an outpouring of the Spirit and such a season of good fellowship that the whole neighborhood was astir. They had never seen it on that fashion. They did have a glorious meeting. I think it was something like an apostolic meeting. They were not much concerned about the things that were "theirs," for they lived very much in common during that meeting. But the meeting had closed. The little wife rejoiced in her husband's work,—no, rather in the work that the Lord did through him. She little realized how much of it the Lord did through her. But then she was only the minister's little wife, so, how could she think of herself? She read on. Only two more weeks and she would welcome him home again.

She turned to the second letter. Should she believe her own eyes? There fell from it a draft of ten dollars. All in her own name too. And the letter was not written in the usual hand of her husband. What could it mean? She read it through. It fell into her lap. She rested her weary head on her hands while tears flowed freely down her cheek. She breathed a silent prayer for those sisters who, mindful of her, had made up the purse, sent it to her and wrote a letter besides. They did it all because she had been so kind in allowing her husband to be away from home, to minister to their wants while they were at home with their husbands and children. Somehow it lifted a heavy burden from her heart to know that others thought of her. The money meant something, of course it did, but the letter meant everything to her. Perish the thought that she should set her heart on ten dollars, or any number of dollars for that matter. But blessed be the thought that, while she was at home with all those cares resting on her, others were thinking of her,—the minister's little wife whom the home folks seldom had a concern for. It was too much for her. For fifteen years had her husband been in the field doing the work of an evangelist. Often he received less than his actual expense, but these people had not only rewarded him according to his labor but had also remembered her. Surely, those must be Christians whose hearts God had touched so that they thought of her whom they had never seen. May heaven reward them according to their gracious kindness!

For one brief moment she was tempted. It was only for a moment. She longed that she might be free to go with her husband on such a mission. Banish the thought! Was it not better that she stay at home and rear their little family for God and the right? Then would the children,—their children,—grow up to be Christians also. As she kissed her sleeping babe good-night, she retired feeling ten years younger, simply because others had thought her worthy of remembrance because of her husband's work. Yes, and one thing more,—they remembered her.

God bless the minister's little wife. And may he bless also those who, in their daily round of work, do not forget to pray for her, occasionally write to her, and sometimes remember her with something that proves they have not forgotten her. For hold this written in your heart: While the minister's first best gift from God was a Christian mother, his second best gift was his devoted Christian wife. God bless her and may she become many, very many as the years go by.

Mt. Morris, Ill.

Elder I. D. Parker.

By Otho Winger.

The history of the Church of the Brethren for 1910 must record the death of one of her able men, Eld. I. D. Parker, who passed from labor to reward May 21. He was born Jan. 22, 1847. He spent his boyhood days in labor on his father's farm, near Loudonville, Ohio. At the age of eighteen he was left an orphan, and without money. But he did have possessions that were of more value than gold. At sixteen he had accepted his Savior and found him precious to his soul. The spare moments of his youth were spent in hard private study, and he was now prepared to begin teaching. His youthful experience had developed within him pronounced convictions of right and an invincible determination to be useful in life.

He first taught in the country schools, improving his vacations by further preparation at private normals. Later he taught in a graded school and served one year on the faculty of Salem College, at Bourbon, Ind. Though this early attempt of the Brethren, to start a school, did not succeed, Bro. Parker became an ardent supporter of the educational movement in the church.

He has been a friend to all our schools and has contributed, more or less, to the support of all. He was one of the trustees of Ashland College, that selected Eld. R. H. Miller as president of that institution in 1880. He later served as president of the board of trustees of Manchester College. It is due to his untiring industry and perseverance that the last-named institution has remained a Brethren's school. When it seemed hopelessly in debt, he entered the field and persevered until he had raised the money to cancel the debt, and place the school as a free gift in the hands of the church. A few years ago he performed a similar service for the Maryland Collegiate Institute. He was a firm advocate of placing our schools under church supervision.

In 1873 he was called to the ministry, and ordained to the eldership a few years later, by Eld. James Quinter. He soon showed marked ability as a logical thinker and as an expositor of the doctrines of the church. In the days of upheaval and division he did much to hold his brethren faithful to the old mother church.

Eld. I. D. Parker.

Bro. Parker was one of our ablest evangelists. After his call to the ministry, he gave up teaching that he might spend more time in church service. For fifteen years he directed the work on the farm, and held from six to eight meetings a year. Not only did he succeed financially, but hundreds united with the church through his efforts. In 1893 he moved from Ashland, Ohio, to the Elkhart Valley church in Northern Indiana. During the first year of his service there over sixty persons were gathered into the kingdom. His preaching was not of the sentimental kind, but full of reason, instruction, warning and persuasive appeals. At times, in his great earnestness, he reached heights of genuine eloquence.

He was often selected to preach at the Annual Meeting. He served four times on the Standing Committee, twice in an official capacity. He thoroughly understood church polity and had much influence in shaping the decisions of the Conference. He had few equals in placing on paper a statement in the best possible form. He frequently served on committees to churches. In this work he exercised great tact and forbearance, but was always faithful to the principles of the church. He was remarkably quick to grasp the situation in the solution of church differences.

He was thoroughly in sympathy with the missionary movements of the church and did much to gain financial support. In 1898 he became traveling secretary for the General Mission Board. He traveled all over the Brotherhood, and secured as much money (if not more) as any other brother ever did. He did most of the work in the transference of Eld. Jas. Gish's estate into the hands of the Board. The Mission Board always felt entirely safe in entrusting such matters into his hands. He had the cause of missions and schools so thoroughly at heart that he presented their claims to the Brethren with almost irresistible persuasion. If he could not persuade the people as to the necessity of giving, it was little use for others to try.

Bro. Parker was a leader of great ability, and under his leadership men might feel safe. His untiring energy, invincible determination, keen foresight and tact insured success. Being a man who did things, he was frequently misjudged, but he never complained. He was abreast of the age in all genuine progress. He did not accept every innovation but always welcomed better plans and methods of doing the Lord's work. He was among the first to support Sunday-schools and Christian Workers' Meetings.

By many he will be best remembered as a true and tried friend. One of his best sermons was "Friendship." His genial companionship was a constant joy to those who knew him best. To converse with him was to be benefited. Foolishness and jesting found no place with him. He knew the needs and activities of the church and loved to converse about them. He was ready to help his friends, and those in need,—even to his own personal discomfort.

On Christmas Day, 1873, he was united in marriage to Sister Jemima Moherman. He was a kind and indulgent husband and always strove to make home happy. Sister Parker is left in her loneliness to carry out his plans and purposes, many of which looked forward to the enlargement of his Father's kingdom. Though no children ever came to bless their home, yet many over the Brotherhood look to him as their spiritual father.

For many months it was evident that Bro. Parker was failing in health, yet he was ever hopeful and cheerful, and did not complain. He continued to do his share of the preaching in the Goshen City church, where he had resided for the past four years. April 12 he and his wife went to their old home at Ashland. His health continued to fail. He attended his last public service May 15, at a love feast in the Maple Grove congregation. On the same day he received the anointing by the elders of the church. Yet no one suspected that the end was so near. The next Thursday he was struck with a chill, and on Friday with an acute pain in the chest. Medical assistance could not relieve him, for the angel messenger had called. On Saturday he peacefully passed to the great beyond.

The funeral service was very ably conducted by Eld. Galen B. Royer, who had been so closely associated with Bro. Parker for years in missionary endeavor. He reviewed the varied labors of the departed one and then impressed the necessity of so working that stars will be assured for the crown over there, and that we do not need to go empty-handed.

The news came with suddenness and sorrow to hundreds in the Brotherhood. Especially was he missed at the Winona Annual Conference, which assembled two weeks later. He was foreman of the program committee and had done much to insure the success of that great meeting. His impress upon the history of the church will be a living monument to him when marble columns have decayed.

The Baby Over the Way.

Across in my neighbor's window,
With its drapings of satin and lace,
I see, 'neath a crown of ringlets,
A baby's innocent face;
His feet in their wee red slippers
Are tapping the polished glass,
And the crowd in the street look upward,
And nod and smile as they pass.

Just here in my cottage window,
In the rays of the noonday sun,
With a patch on his faded apron,
Stands my own dear little one.
His face is as pure and handsome
As the baby's over the way.
And he keeps my heart from breaking
At my toiling every day.

Sometimes, when the day is ended,
And I sit in the dusk to rest,
With the face of my sleepy darling
Hugged close to my sleepy breast,
I pray that my neighbor's baby
May not catch heaven's roses, all,
But that some may crown the forehead
Of my loved one as they fall.

And when I draw the stockings
From his little, tired feet,
And kiss the rosy dimples
In his limbs so round and sweet,
I think of the dainty garments
Some little children wear,
And frown that my God withholds them
From mine so pure and fair.

* * * * *
May God forgive my envy,
I knew not what I said;
My heart is crushed and humbled,
My neighbor's boy is dead!
I saw the little coffin
As they carried it out today;
A mother's heart is breaking
In the mansion over the way.

The light is fair in my window,
The blossoms bloom in my door,
My boy is chasing the sunbeams
That dance on the cottage floor.
The roses of health are blushing
On my darling's cheek today,
But baby is gone from the window
Of the house that's over the way.

The Origin of the Church of the Brethren

By D. Webster Kurtz.

Every member of the Church of the Brethren is interested in its early history. I have not had opportunity, since my visit to Schwarzenau and Laasphe, to make further researches, as I hope to do soon, in this interesting field. But there are some facts which are anterior to 1708 which must be understood if we lics. For Luther and the religious leaders it was genuinely religious, but the people knew no more than the pass word. The political significance was more concrete. It meant that Germany was to be governed by Germans and not by an Italian,—the pope. Economically it was concrete also. No longer were heavy taxes paid to the Vatican. Intellectually, too, it broke the shackles of bondage to creedism, which were forged out of papal bulls and excommunications. But religious piety was not materially deepened or theologically changed for the masses until two centuries later. The Lutheran creed was not written in opposition to Catholicism, but in opposition to the more liberal Zwingli. Even today, in Germany, the worship would comprehend the momentous event of that year. I refer to the Pietistic Movement which is the background of the origin of our church. Without understanding the nature and meaning of this movement, the heroic work of Alexander Mack and his associates is obscure and inexplicable.

The Lutheran Reformation was, for the mass of the people, more a political and economic reformation than a religious movement. In fact, real piety suffered and was, for a time, lower among the Protestants than among the Catholics. For Luther and the religious leaders it was genuinely religious, but the people knew no more than the pass word. The political significance was more concrete. It meant that Germany was to be governed by Germans and not by an Italian,—the pope. Economically it was concrete also. No longer were heavy taxes paid to the Vatican. Intellectually, too, it broke the shackles of bondage to creedism, which were forged out of papal bulls and excommunications. But religious piety was not materially deepened or theologically changed for the masses until two centuries later. The Lutheran creed was not written in opposition to Catholicism, but in opposition to the more liberal Zwingli. Even today, in Germany, the worship is as formal in a Protestant as in a Catholic church; and the ordinary peasant scarcely knows any distinction between the faith of the Protestant and Catholic, except the difference of the pope.

The religious wars, purely political in origin and result, were destructive to religious piety. It seems universal, wherever religious wars have been fought—whether with the sword or with a war of words—there religion has become barren of the fruits of the Spirit. Germany was a battlefield for so long that her

"Our Saturday Night" has been received. It is just simply impossible to tell how much we appreciate the book. It came on Friday and I finished reading it today (Sunday) just before dinner. My wife finished it three hours later. She says do not get any more like it just now or she will not get anything done but read.

Many of the incidents are pathetic; all are interesting and instructive, and they are all great in simplicity. The book deserves a wide circulation and I know it will be fascinating and eminently helpful wherever it goes. "A Subscriber."

strength was consumed, her best men were slain, her spirit had fled, and all resources exhausted, when the peace of Westphalia, in 1648, gave her a respite.

During the last quarter of the seventeenth century, and the first of the eighteenth century a movement,—not an organization,—sprang up all over Germany at the same time. Up to this time probably not one person out of a thousand owned a Bible. Not more than one preacher out of thirty as much as owned a Testament. The only religious education had been the catechism, which was not unlike the Catholic catechism,— people. Minute descriptions by impartial observers of their prayer life, their self-denials, sacrifice, Bible study and general piety, show better than the volumes of Spener, Francke, Arnold, Zinzendorf, and others, the inner nature of the movement.

The people who were stirred to this new piety found a coldness and formalism in the established (legalized) churches, and consequently absented themselves from them. To organize new churches was forbidden by law. Hence the fierce persecutions which followed, and drove the only religious persons in Germany to the mountains and to America. The emigration of Germans from Württemberg, the Pfalz and the upper Rhein country to America was largely due to religious persecutions. These made the best immigrants America ever got.

Those who could not come to America sought protection wherever a friendly prince would grant them a home, temporary or otherwise. Many found such a home at Wernigerode in containing a few facts about God, Christ, the church, etc. The ministers had a small book of extracts from the Bible which they used, and also the hymn book. No sermons were preached by the mass of ministers,—the service was purely formal and ritualistic.

The Pietistic movement was a movement of Bible study, with the natural result of a deepening piety. This movement had its great leaders, but a study of the leaders is not a full picture of the movement, whose real character is better portrayed in the hymns, the prayers and letters written by the common the Harz. Still more came to the lonely hills and vales in Wittgenstein, which was then controlled by Hedwig Sophia (1693-1712) of Berleburg, who ruled the northern two-fifths of Wittgenstein, and Count Heinrich Albrecht, of Laasphe, who governed the remaining three-fifths of the country, which includes Schwarzenau. Hedwig Sophia was herself a Pietist and her son, Count Casimir, was very devout. There was the freest intercourse between the Pietists that lived at Berleburg and those at Schwarzenau, even though the latter place was governed by Prince Henry. He, too, was a devout man and spent much of his time in the castle (Schloss) at Schwarzenau. His two daughters were Pietists, and lived with the Pietists at Schwarzenau. I have read several letters written by one of them to her father, in which she describes minutely the daily life of these people, especially about the "Täufer," whose lives were full of "good works," of "prayers and Bible study," and "much kindness and charity to the poor."

Persecutions drove the Pietists to Schwarzenau. Bible study and prayer deepened their religious life, and clarified their theology, so that they must, once and for all, separate from the state church. Many of them did not believe in organizations at all. But Alexander Mack saw the absolute necessity of organizing a church and performing the rites and symbols taught by Christ, in order to fulfill the will of God, and to perpetuate his work upon the earth. He, with seven others, in the year 1708, organized what is now "The Church of the Brethren." Their purpose was to establish apostolic Christianity upon the earth. They adopted no creed, but recognized the New Testament as their guide. All the doctrines and principles taught therein are the principles of faith. The story of the beginning of our church has been told so beautifully by Dr. Brumbaugh that I shall not repeat further.

These good people were, however, not left in peace. Objections came from all sides that godless people were living there who did not attend the state church nor did they submit to its ordinances. On Easter morning of 1719 the soldiers came and took the babes out of the mothers' arms by force, and took them to the state church where they were sprinkled. A cousin of Prince Henry, from Wetzlar, brought suit against Henry for permitting the "Täufer" in his territory. Evidently Henry saw that he could no longer defend these people. Most likely he told them this and they, thankful for past favors and not wishing to cause him any trouble, quietly left and went to West Friesland. I read the letter where Henry defends himself, saying that he had no such persons in his territory. He did have, but two hundred persons,—forty families,—had just left, and now no one was there except Lutherans, Calvinists and Catholics. In a previous defense Henry says he does not harbor godless and wicked people, but the people whom he had were the "best people he ever saw" and "they had more religion than any of the members of the state church." "Their religion is genuine, but the religion of many others is sham."

Goebel in his great work, "Christliches Leben," etc., gives accounts of many severe persecutions endured by our Brethren. Some of these will yet be translated and published for the edification of all. The Church of the Brethren was born out of persecution, Bible study, prayer, sacrifice and service, and a will wholly, resigned to know and to do the Will of God. A noble and heroic beginning! May the devotion and sacrifice of our founders be a living inspiration to us for larger things in the future!

There Are Men Who Conceal Their Age.

A fine old gentleman whom I sometimes see is at the head of a business enterprise which requires attention night and day. The fine old gentleman founded it over fifty years ago, when he was a raw, redheaded youth. He gave it the closest attention from the start and continues to do so to this day. He is obliged to or it would not prosper, although now he is wealthy. His hair is snow white, but his bearing is erect and graceful as a soldier's, and he is on duty as many hours as any employé he has. There is about him no trace of failing either physically or mentally, and he manages his affairs even better than he did fifty years ago because of the long experience. He is now seventy-five years old, "but he is sensitive about his age," his acquaintances say. When I heard that, I respected this fine old man more than ever. He feels himself strong, well and capable as ever, but he fears if the foolish, spiteful world knew how old he is it might take for granted he is growing weak. I once knew, too, a man who dreaded so to be thought old that he sometimes told strangers his own daughters were his stepchildren. Nobody ever really did find out how old he was, but for forty years he presented the appearance of a man forty to fifty years of age. In general, where you find an old man or even an old woman who is sensitive on the subject of age you will find a person who is twenty years younger than the family Bible records. I don't know whether the fine old gentleman of seventy-five is a widower or not, but in any case this spirit of persistent youthfulness is a credit to him. To feel ever young and keep up the appearance of being young is a fine trait in aging men. If more men possessed this spirit, there would not be nearly so many decrepit old hunks among them.

Queer Almanacs.

The boundary-riders of the great Australian sheep ranches have each a district to look after, in which one must keep the wire fences in repair, and see that the sheep come to no harm. It is a hard and lonely life, living, as each boundary-rider does, quite alone in the wilderness.

A writer tells of some of the curious ways in which these solitary men keep count of the days.

One old man, who had lived in the back country for thirty years, used two jam tins and seven pebbles. One tin was marked: "This week;" and the other, "Last week." On Monday morning he would take a pebble from "Last week," and drop it into "This week," and one every subsequent morning, till "This week" had swallowed the seven. They were returned to "Last week," and the old fellow knew that another Sunday had passed.

Another man had tried and failed with several plans. At last he hit on a new idea. He made a big damper (cake of flour and water) on Sunday night, and marked it into seven sections, each section being a day's allowance, so that every time he picked up the damper the grooves would remind him of the day. Unfortunately, one Tuesday there came a visitor with a ravenous appetite. The host stinted himself that the hungry one might be satisfied with the day's section. But he wasn't. With anxious eyes the host saw the knife clearing the boundary-line, and the hungry man ruthlessly carving into his almanac. At last he could stand it no longer.

"Stop! stop!" he cried, as he grabbed the damper and glared at it.

"There," he said, "you've eaten Toosday and We'n'sday, and now yer wanten slice the best o' the mornin' off o' Thursday, an' I won't know the day o' the week."

The Annual Meeting for 1911.

The Annual Conference for the Church of the Brethren is to be held in the large and commodious city Auditorium, St. Joseph, Mo., and the accommodations for the meetings are said to be as good as any we have enjoyed in the past. The railroad conveniences would be hard to surpass. Several leading lines enter the city, thus enabling our people to reach the place without any inconvenience whatever.

The Conference proper begins on Tuesday morning, June 6, but the Standing Committee will meet and organize on Thursday, June 1, at 8 A. M. Services in the Auditorium are to begin about one week before the opening of the Conference, and will be conducted by speakers selected for the purpose. The Program will be announced in the Messenger in due time.

Bro. J. S. Kline is the chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, and may be addressed at 2919 St. Joseph Ave., St. Joseph, Mo.

Easter, April 7.

Pentecost, May 26.

Churches and Missions, with Pastors or Elders in Charge.

Below will be found a list of Brethren churches, with the pastors or elders in charge, by States, as complete as could be arranged from the data in hand. Some churches have several elders, but only one could be given. In most instances the one named is the elder in charge, whether resident or nonresident. For a number of congregations, or missions, the name of the pastor is given. For the address of any of these elders or pastors, see ministerial list elsewhere.

Pastor's Pocket Record

Arranged by Rev. Sylvanus Stall, D. D.

This record affords space for the recording of 63 church officers; 714 members; over 6,000 pastoral calls; 42 communion services; 126 baptisms; 84 marriages; 105 funerals; 273 sermons; 63 addresses; 168 new members, besides ten other departments.

Ministers will find this an excellent little volume to carry with them at all times. It contains nearly 200 pages and is bound in black leather, size 3½x5½ inches. Very convenient to carry in pocket. Price postpaid 50c.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Elgin, Illinois.

BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Elgin, Illinois.

1. Trine Immersion as the Apostolic Form of Christian Baptism.—By James Quinter. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for cost of postage and packing, 15 cents.

2. Doctrine of the Brethren Defended.—By R. H. Miller. An able treatise of the Divinity of Christ and the Holy Spirit, Immersion as the Mode of Baptism, Trine Immersion, the Forward Action in Baptism, Feet-washing, the Lord's Supper, the Holy Kiss, Nonconformity, or Plainness of Dress, and Secret Societies. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for cost of postage and packing, 14 cents.

5. Seven Churches of Asia.—By D. L. Miller, giving a history of the Seven Churches of Asia, and a description of the present sites. The author's personal observations, made while traveling in the Bible Lands, enter largely into the work. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for cost of postage and packing, 14 cents.

11. Bible Dictionary.—By Smith and Peloubet. Finely illustrated. Several maps. Over eight hundred pages. The best Bible dictionary published. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for cost of postage and packing, 25 cents.

15. The Eternal Verities.—By D. L. Miller. On Christian evidences. The author has gathered together many proofs of the truth of the Bible. The reader of this volume will have his faith confirmed and his hope strengthened. Several excellent illustrations add to the interest and value of this book. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for postage and packing, 19 cents.

18. The Lord's Supper.—By D. B. Gibson. The purpose of this little book is to show that the Lord's supper is an evening meal, to be eaten by the followers of Christ, in connection with feet-washing and the communion, and it is the duty of the church to see that it is perpetuated. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for postage and packing, 10 cents.

19. Modern Secret Societies.—By Chas. A. Blanchard, D. D. A brief treatise for busy people, and especially intended for ministers and teachers. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for postage and packing, 10 cents.

20. Alone With God.—By J. H. Garrison. A manual of devotions, being a series of meditations and forms of prayer for private devotions, family worship and special occasions. This book will be helpful to every minister, church official, as well as every private member. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for postage and packing, 10 cents.

22. The Book of Books.—It treats on the different versions of the Bible, where the Book came from, the different periods through which it has passed, along with a history of old manuscripts, etc. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for cost of postage and packing, 12 cents.

23. Cruden's Concordance.—This concordance is one of the best published. It contains the definition of important Bible terms. This feature alone is of great value. The book contains 757 pages. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for postage and packing, 30 cents.

24. Bible Manners and Customs.—By Rev. G. M. Mackie. The author was a missionary in the Bible Lands, and resided at Beirut for twenty years. He traveled extensively in Palestine and became thoroughly familiar with the manners and customs of the people. The book is well illustrated. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for postage and packing, 12 cents.

26. Bible Atlas; Historical Geography of the Bible.—By J. L. Hurlbut, D. D. It contains maps, plans, review charts, colored diagrams, and is illustrated with accurate views of the principal cities and localities known to Bible history. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren, 60 cents.

28. Topical Text Book.—A Scripture text-book for the use of ministers, teachers, visitors, etc. New edition, revised and enlarged. Edited by R. A. Torrey, D. D. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for postage and packing, 12 cents.

29. History of the Brethren.—By M. G. Brumbaugh. This is written from the most valuable early records, and gives a list of many early members in Europe and America. Profusely illustrated. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren, 48 cents.

30. The Young Preacher.—By Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for postage and packing, 10 cents.

31. The Twelve Apostles.—By J. W. Wayland. The author has gathered together all that is known about these men who stood so close to the Master during his ministry. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for postage and packing, 12 cents.

32. The Life and Times of Jesus the Messiah.—By Alfred Edersheim. One of the most complete and reliable lives of Christ ever published. Two large volumes. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren, 69 cents.

33. The Sick, the Dying and the Dead.—By J. G. Royer. A helpful book for ministers, when called to the home of the sick, or the home visited by death. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for cost of postage and packing, 7 cents.

34. How to Master the English Bible.—By James M. Gray. A small volume which will prove very interesting to all Bible students; of especial value to ministers. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for postage and packing, 8 cents.

35. Teacher-Training with the Master Teacher.—By C. S. Beardslee. Forty lessons, 178 pages. An excellent book for student, teacher and preacher. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren for postage and packing, 9 cents.

36. Universalism Against Itself.—By A. Wilford Hall, Ph. D. This is probably one of the most convincing works of its kind ever published. The arguments set forth against the claims of Universalism are unanswerable. Over 100,000 copies of these books have been sold. 350 pages. Cloth. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren, 15 cents.

37. Problems of Pulpit and Platform.—By D. D. Culler, 156 pages. A splendid work on public speaking, in which many of the phases of voice culture, physical and mental training, along with the delivery of public addresses, are forcibly and clearly considered. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren, 12 cents.

38. History of the Christian Church.—Vol. I.—By Philip Schaff. This volume covers the first one hundred years of the Christian era, the most important period in the history of the Christian church. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren, 88 cents.

39. Bible Readings and Bible Studies.—By I. J. Rosenberger. A very useful book of Bible references, arranged on special doctrinal and evangelistic subjects. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren, 10 cents.

40. History of the Christian Church. Vol. II.—By Philip Schaff. A History of the Christian Church of the Ante-Nicene Period A. D. 100-325. Intensely practical and of much value to the minister. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren, 88 cents.

41. Minutes of the Annual Meetings.—Embracing all the decisions of the Annual Meeting to date, as far as they could be obtained. Complete, systematic, well-indexed, cloth-bound. 944 pages. To ministers of the Church of the Brethren, for postage and packing, 28 cents.

AN UNFAILING GUIDE

Self and Sex Series

No more popular series of books has been written. Millions of copies have been sold. They have gone into all countries where Christianity and civilization have penetrated, and have been translated into many languages and dialects. The value of these books to the human race is inestimable. The subjects which they treat are ordinarily avoided, but are nevertheless of first importance. The books are warmly praised by many eminent men and women. Lives are unhappy, miserable and often wrecked because of ignorance concerning the very things made plain in these books.

There are four volumes for men and boys, written by Sylvanus Stall, D. D., and four volumes for women and girls, written by Mrs. Emma F. A. Drake, M. D., and Mrs. Mary Wood Allen, M. D. Following are the titles:

- "What a Young Girl Ought to Know."
- "What a Young Boy Ought to Know."
- "What a Young Woman Ought to Know."
- "What a Young Man Ought to Know."
- "What a Young Wife Ought to Know."
- "What a Young Husband Ought to Know."
- "What a Woman of 45 Ought to Know."
- "What a Man of 45 Ought to Know."

Finger Posts on Life's Highway

By John T. Dale.

DO you want to know how to succeed in life? Read this book. It contains 620 pages, covering more than one hundred articles, each of which is a "finger post" pointing a road to success. It is a key to true development of mind and heart, and happiness here and beyond. The author has had unusual opportunities for exercising his faculty of close observation in country and city life, and this collection of articles is the result of many years' gathering. A wise maxim, or rule of business has saved many a fortune; a word of caution has saved many a precious life, and a word of warning many a soul. Such words and maxims are found in this volume. As a book for a family library it is immensely valuable. There are chapters for all, regardless of sex, age, condition in life, calling or profession. Be sure to include this in the list of books you buy this year. Bound in cloth, Price, $1.50.

DICKEY DOWNEY.

By Virginia Sharp Patterson.

Introduction by Hon. F. Lacey.

The autobiography of a bird. There is not a dull word in this book. It is a powerful protest against the wholesale slaughter of song and other birds. The atmosphere is that of the fields and groves as the various haunts of bird-life are depicted. Besides giving entertainment it will furnish lessons. At the hands of our children our birds must find protection. The children cannot be given a better book, at home and in the schools.

MONTANA

Its Resources and Possibilities

It is not necessary for us to beat a drum to attract the people from north, south, east and west, thereby gathering up a promiscuous community of people. We are making an effort to colonize these lands with the best class of American farmers, and are making an effort to secure a large representation from among the members of the Church of the Brethren.

The Company's effort to secure settlers from among this organization is not made from a religious consideration, however admirable that might be, but purely as a matter of business. We want settlers who will go in for diversified farming and fruit raising, in other words "Intensive Farming." From information and observation we believe the members of this organization to represent the highest type of the intelligent, industrious American farmer. And that the same intelligence and industry put into practice "On the Sweet Grass" would make it the show place in Montana and be a source of pride to the Company and untold profit to the settler himself.

Remember, we are only asking you to investigate these lands and their possibilities. We do not expect any one to buy without first seeing for himself.

Montana has the largest mining population of any state except Pennsylvania. Our miners and other workmen receive from $3 to $6 and $8 per day. This population demands and consumes regardless of price the best products of our farms. Two million dollars' worth of pork and pork products and vast quantities of eggs, poultry and dairy products are shipped into this market from other states annually. It is only 150 miles from the "Sweet Grass" District by direct railroad into the cities and mining camps of this vast mining district. Wealth awaits the farmer who will grow stuff for this market. These lands are from 300 to 1,000 miles nearer the great eastern fruit market than western Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

Notice the following:

Elgin, Ill., September 20th, 1909.

Glass Bros. Land Co.,
Big Timber, Montana.

I regard your Montana irrigation project to be par excellence. My thorough investigation impressed me that it is well adapted to apples, sugar beets, alfalfa, grain and diversified farming. The productiveness of the lands is wonderful. The climate is ideal. I bought 160 acres and expect to plant one thousand apple trees in the spring. I would not hesitate to recommend it to parties desiring to locate in a new, prosperous country.

(Signed) R. E. ARNOLD.

Elder L. H. Dickey, Fostoria, Ohio; Elder W. B. Neff, Milford, Ind., and George B. Morlock, Plymouth, Ind., say: "We find good soil, pure water, and can heartily recommend your land and irrigation works, as well as the farming, social, climate, educational and business conditions. We do this believing it is a good place to live and that persons settling here should, with industry and intelligence, prosper to a high degree."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON Bible Chart

It's the latest and most convenient lesson help on the market.

Read the description and what some of the most prominent Sunday-school workers of the land say about it.

The accompanying cut shows a reduced facsimile of one page, size 13x20 inches, 54 pages. When hung on the wall large print can be read at a distance of 8 to 10 feet.

It contains all the Sunday-school lessons for the entire year. Each page contains full text of one of the lessons, the golden text, the home readings, three teaching points, subject and Scripture reference.

Read what some of the leading S.-S. workers of the United States say:

Marion Lawrance, General Secretary of the International S.-S. Association: "I have never seen anything of the kind that compared with it for helpfulness along the very lines where help is needed."

Dr. W. A. Duncan, Founder of the Home Department: "I know of nothing like it nor so good, and I heartily recommend it to all Home Department Students."

Dr. H. M. Hamil: "I think your chart to be one of the most timely and helpful of all recent additions to Sunday-school literature."

REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD HAVE IT.

1. It keeps the lesson before you the entire week.
2. The Teaching Points are suggestive and will start you to think about what the lesson is to teach you and others.
3. It is attractive to old and young, and gives you a decidedly favorable impression of the lesson.
4. If hung in the dining room it will lead you to talk about the lessons while you eat.
5. It will awaken a relish for further study.

Markets

The entire Pacific Coast furnishes a market for the product of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys. Within a hundred and fifty miles of the Butte County Canal System are the cities of San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, Stockton, Sacramento and nearly a hundred smaller towns and cities, with an aggregate population of over 1,500,000. The price of all staple foods is high, and agricultural development does not keep pace with the growth of the coast cities and inland towns.

A very large percentage of food supplies consumed by the cities of California is imported from the Eastern States. A very large percentage of the best irrigable land in the State of California is planted, and will continue to be planted to citrus and other fruits, most of which are exported to the Eastern States, which tends to limit the territory available for the production of the more staple commodities. Should the production of staple commodities ever catch up with the growth of California cities there is still an ever-increasing market along the coast of Washington, Oregon, Canada and Alaska, as well as in Honolulu, and for surplus rice in Japan and China, both of which are today large importers.

Price Per Acre

The price is $150 per acre, including a perpetual water right, but without any improvements. If you buy a farm with improvements, the cost of the improvements is added to the price of the land. Our terms are 10% down, the balance to be paid for on time, on our Half-Crop Payment Plan.

For $1,200 cash, you get an 80-acre Farm worth $12,000. Under our offer we share all risks and responsibility. Our Motto is "No crops, no pay." But as there are no failures in crops there is no risk assumed. You take immediate possession; and you can easily have a deed to your 40 or 80 acre irrigated farm in less than five years.

How to Work Your Farm

If you buy a 40-acre farm, we want you to plant 30 acres immediately to alfalfa. The other ten acres you can use for whatever you choose, and it will easily provide for all living expenses. Your first payment on a 40 acre farm is $600, and you pay no more until you earn it out of the ground. Thirty acres of alfalfa will produce from 8 to 12 tons of hay after the first year, and is worth from $8 to $12 per ton baled. Thus your income from alfalfa alone will be from $2,000 to $4,000 per annum. The first year your alfalfa will make from 3 to 4 tons to the acre, so you will have ample income to live on the first year. You will require at least $1,200 to $1,500 cash to buy one of our 40 acre farms, in addition to your farm equipment. To farm one of our 80 acre farms, you will require double the money and farm equipment, but your income should be more than double that from a 40 acre farm.

General Remarks

Remember, not one of our farms is over three miles from two lines of railway, and one of them is the Northern Electric railway, which stops at every public highway to pick up passengers and freight. It is the most beautiful valley in California, and you must see it to appreciate it. All persons buying one of our 40 acre farms, will be given credit for their railroad fare to go and see the land for themselves.

The first picture on the opposite page represents a harvest scene. Second, Dairy and beef cattle pay enormous profits. Third, An oats field yielding 85 bushels per acre. Fourth, Almond bleaching preparatory for market.

Testimonials

MAKE A LIVING AND ACCUMULATE WEALTH ON TEN ACRES.

Gridley, Cal., Oct. 17, 1910.

Gentlemen: In reply to your inquiry regarding my success the past season in farming my ten acres of land in Gridley Colony No. 4, and if I was satisfied with this country, I will state that I settled on my land three years ago last spring, purchasing it on the installment plan. Although possessing very little means at that time, I have met my payments, improved the property and made a living for my family. I am well satisfied with the country and believe conditions here are very favorable for the homeseeker.

Four acres of my land were planted to peach trees three years ago last spring, and $2\frac{1}{2}$ acres are seeded to alfalfa. About one-half acre is occupied by buildings, yards, etc. The remaining three acres and the land between the orchard tree rows were devoted to truck farming the past season, as follows: Berries, $\frac{1}{4}$ acre; sweet potatoes, $\frac{1}{4}$ acre; tomatoes, 1 acre; corn, $1\frac{1}{2}$ acres; some beans, peppers, sweet corn, Irish potatoes, onions and cucumbers, for all of which we had a ready market and secured good returns. About \$200 was secured from the tomatoes, and a proportionate income from the Irish potatoes, berries and sweet potatoes.

We have secured about one thousand dollars revenue the past season from our products, and have about $200 worth to sell, making the income about $1,200 for the season. We have been able to put $700 in the bank, in addition to making a living. From eight hens and one rooster we raised 150 chickens, besides selling several settings of eggs, during the past season. We feed one horse and two cows from the products of our land.

We believe anyone possessing a small amount of capital, by the use of intelligent effort, can succeed here.

Very truly yours,

O. T. SHIRLEY.

SOME SATISFACTORY PROFITS FROM ALFALFA, GRAPES AND TURKEYS.

Gridley, Cal., Oct. 27, 1910.

Gentlemen: I own 20 acres in Gridley Colony No. 3, ten acres of which are planted to Thompson's Seedless raisin grapes, and 7 acres are in alfalfa. The remainder is planted to family orchard and other crops, including one-half acre of winter rhubarb. We secured $75 from the rhubarb last winter, but prospect is favorable to secure more than three times that sum the present season. Our grape crop was very light this season, owing to overproduction last year, but will bring over $1,000 at present price of raisins.

I have cut five good crops of hay the present season from my alfalfa, two of which were sold as cut, loose, bringing me $20 per acre. Some of the other crops were sold and some fed, and a portion put in barn for future use, of which no account or estimated value was made. It might be of interest to state that from three turkeys I have raised 29 that will sell for over $100. Anyone able and willing to work can do well here.

Very truly yours,

D. D. GILSTRAP.
